

Keep Merchants of Death off your campus!!

What is the Stop the Merchants of Death Campaign?

A Merchant of Death is a corporation that uses its position to promote war and then profit from the bloodshed. The War Resisters League's Stop the Merchants of Death Campaign focuses specifically on stopping Halliburton and their subsidiary, Kellogg Brown & Root (KBR). Working for Halliburton means working for war.

Here are some steps you can take to resist:

#1 Inform Yourself:

Contact your school's administration for information about the upcoming job fairs or career days.

Find out if Halliburton, or any other Merchant of Death, is planning to recruit on your campus. Educate yourself about the corporation: what is its relationship to militarism? Human rights abuses? Workers rights? The wars in Iraq and Afghanistan?

#2 Get Your School's Attention:

Engage the student body.

Download flyers from our website and flyer your campus. Get students to sign petitions that demand a Merchant of Death-free school. Tell the administration that you do not want these corporations recruiting students to participate in the preparation of warfare and violence.

#3 Step up the pressure:

If your university continues to give Halliburton access to your campus, start an education campaign.

Inform students, parents and faculty of the corporation's connection to militarism and the war in Iraq. Organize a teach-in, write an editorial piece for the local paper, and solicit support from the faculty and campus community organizations. Contact the War Resisters League to download more materials and information, to request a copy of our anti-Halliburton PowerPoint presentation, or to bring one of our speakers to your campus.

#4 Take Action Against Halliburton:

If Halliburton's recruiters arrive - take action!

Leaflet outside the job fair and have students sign our "Pledge of Resistance" cards, affirming that they will not work for a Merchant of Death. Tie up the line by standing at the recruiter's table and asking lots of questions: don't give them access to potential recruits. Organize a group of dedicated students to commit to direct action by physically blocking the doorway of the job fair or to the recruitment table. It's your campus - keep the warmakers out!
